SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE CHESCHIAN. WARRINGTON, Feb. 78—The extraordinary nature of the occasion and the remarkable character of the authence at the capitol yesterday, as great as they were in point of interest, are mentioned to-night as matters for merely casual comment, but Blaine's oration is still the theme of almost universal conversation, and is its mased as the great event which dwarfs and overphadows all its attendant circumstances. While of course there is some difference of opinion as to the success with which, by the presence of an authence of each divergent views, he opinion as to the success with which, by the presence of an audience of such divergent views, ho non-hed upon certain urbeated wounds in the republican party that could neither be ignored nor resultly described. There is no difference of indigment as to the ability, grace, and elequence of inc production as a whole. Mr. James Minor, a wealthy bachelor of Nelson county, and brother to Hon. Wilham E. Minor of this county, possesses a history so much onto the common run that it is well worthy of being put on record. He is libraryly after haunted man. All his life he has been permalently followed by a sories of strange fatalities that are in themselves almost enough to cause the most superstitions to look upon his visits as something to be drested. When a civil day one of the decent of his county having been exected at a cost of $10,900. It caught fire and was consumed to assiss. He erected a new house at a like cost, only to become in its tarn tool for the bingry flanges. He subsequently segmed in the immer business and lost a large and valuable lot of lumber by fire. He then visited his brother, residing in Roll. Bottom, this county, and in two or three days after his arrival, the dwelling of the latter was consumed by fire. He then visited his brother, residing in Roll of the house faces the reference in a face of the contents of the face of the followed by a series of the contents of the followed by a series of strated the normal state. He then went to knows to visit his elephnoliter, and white they were conversing about the strange fatality that seemed to dog him through life, the kitchen of her bonse burst into fannes. Returning to Renticke house burst into fannes. Returning to Renticky and visiting at the house of a relative in his native county, while the family were discussing his bad luck—during the course of conversation his native county, while the family were discussing his bad luck—during the course of conversation his stone francet in red, and divided into three bins, of course, they were either afraid that they would be burned up in consequence of his visit—the hicken of that house was also discovered to be on fire. From thence he proceeded to visit the family of another relative in the same county, and, as usual, the subject of the remarkable fatality that seemed to pursus him formed the staple of conversation. A broom in the room was ignited by a spark growing from the fire, whereupon the young lady of the house rehearded that she had left some fire in the partor door the apartment was discovered to be in flames. If any county in any state can produce a man who can truthfully point to a life filted with such strange experiences, or anything at all appreaching them, now is the time to bring him to the front.

Change in the Assessment Law Suggested To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGOSIAN : Allow me through the columns of your paper to anggest that the next legislature repeal the present law for the assessment of property, and pass a law taxing all property wherever found, allowing no indebtedness taken out nor exemptions, except notes and accounts. Under the present law property is appraised at about two-thirds its value, and the indebtedness taken dollar for dollar, which often achiedness taken dollar for dollar, which often cause as loss of all the tax on said properly to the district and county to which it belonks. Under our law our so-called public schools would die of starvation if not fed from the public citb, and one country roads to many districts would also fare badly. The poll tax is the most of the lax by which they are each year worked, while often the best of the property of the district, through examption of indebtedness, recapes its share of incal burden. With the above remody a door would be closed by which property can escape taxation, and counties and district, with then be benefited by the property within their jurisdiction.

that stage of moral development so fondly dreamed of by enthusiastic theorists. From time to time articles have been published by this paper from parties whose belief in the efficacy of the law has been complete but the testimony presented has been of a nature consuperficially. True, in several small cities located in farming districts and supported exclusively by the agricultural interests, there have been fewer arrests for drunkenness, and Testimony of men thoroughly familiar with the true state of affairs, however, shows that this has been productive of greater evils than that of intemporance. The illicit sale or manufacture of liquor is thereby induced, as forced, a feeling not unnaturally extending itself to all laws. Ex-Governor Robinson, a gentleman of larga experience and thoroughly much study, and considers the Kansas amend-contributions to the St. John fund. The governor retorted in a letter to an eastern relig-the Kansas law a boon. The result is that beyond question that drunkenness and the crimes growing out of it are increasing in Kansas; that the law has resulted in the wide-sale: that it is enforced unevenly and inquisiterially, and that, generally, under its operation, under the license system. He quotes from the local newspaper press which clamored for the clamor for its repeal, and he marshals a mass law, and seeing its iniquitous operation, now who habitually drink, and unacquainted with the rougher phases of human conduct. The testimony against their theory is offered by practical men, thoroughly acquainted with the ways of the world, who, while they consider intemperance a curse and productive of a vast majority of the evils from which society and humanity suffer, yet are not blind to what "he who runs may read." An attempt by one-half the human race to control the appetite of the other half will end in utter failure so long as the world lasts. The conquering force which is to destroy the evil of intemperance lies

THE TENNESSEE DEBT.

The supreme court of Tennessee, by three of the judges against two, has decided the dd-justment of the state dobt made by the legisla-C ture to be unconstitutional. The court did this on a fine point, in which it is by no means the judiciary, and trenched upon the legislative power. The legislature provided for re-adjusting-to borrow a fine phrase from old Virginia—the suspended state debt, by issuing new bonds for it at 3 per cent. interest-equivalent to scaling it one-half-and providing that the interest coupons should be receivable for taxes. The court held that the 3 per cent. adjustment is legal, but that the receivability of the compons for taxes is illegal, because the legislature cannot contract away the state revenues for such a time; therefore,

But when the legislature borrows money, constitutions, but that the specific provision of the manner of payment of the interest is unconstitutional. As it is not affirmed that the constitution either specifically or by implication forbids such an act, the court seems to have taken upon itself to make an addition to the constitution to suit the occasion, and thereby to have usurped a discretion which belongs to the legislature. This decision has put Astoria is a port of entry, where foreign veasels bound to Portland, stop to $\tilde{x}$ 5. and 12.

The argument of the libellant is that a competent and enterprising body of pilots is necessary to the security and convenience of commerce on these rivers, and to this end the law allows half pilotage to the pilot who first tenders his services to $\tilde{x}$ 5. vessel "ascending or described in the same, and for the same rouson will permit the founder of such services to be made before such vessel has reached Astoria and as 'sogn as she is inside the bar of the Columbia.

Neither do I think that the usual arguments in favor of half pilotage as a means of encouraging and maintaining an active and com-petent body of pilots upon and about bars and other dangerous waters in the vicinity of or immediate approach to frequented harbors and ports apply to the pilot grounds between Astoria and Portland. DEADY, J.

This said is brought by the libellant, W. A.
Betts, a river plot, to recover the sum of $34, as half pilotage for a tender of services as such pilot to the hark Glaramara.

The libel alleges that on September 18, 1881, the Glaramara, a foreign ship of 800 tons burden, was in the Columbia river below Astoria bound on a voyage to Portland, when the libel lant, a duly qualified and licensed pilot for the port was made under sail or in tow.

By the law of Oregon (Ses. Laws 1865, p. 33; Or. Laws, p. 707 § 12) it is provided that any river pilot "who shall first speak any sea-going vessel ascending or descending the river above Astoria," shall be entitled to half pilotage therefor.

The pilot ground of the Columbia and Wallamet river pilots reaches "from Astoria to; have in the prior net by adding a section thereto—by another pilots reaches "from Astoria to; the addition of new matter and not a change in the law of the act of 1864 to which this § 3 of the act of the act of 1864 to which this § 3 of the act of the act of the act of 1864 to which this § 3 of the act of the act of the act of the act of the sail goes, is in direct conflict with the first point of the control of the commissioners and prescribes an absoriate the effusion that captured the prize: "My dear Pendid,"—Fresh with the breath of morning come your leaf of the prior net by adding a section thereto—by an example of the act of 1864 to which this § 3 of the act of the set of the act of the sail goes, is in direct conflict with the former, in that, it takes the subject of the control of the commissioners and prescribes an absoriate the effusion that captured the prize: "My dear Pendid,"—Fresh with the breath of morning come your leaf of the commissioners and prescribes and a handful of silver.
